The Divine Plan of the Ages

STUDY XV - The Day Of Jehovah

Each of the sections below is summarized with a central point. After reading, participation is open to how you understand the material, substantiation, evidence, examples, or your own questions

Duty and Privilege of the Saints

341:1-3

The example of the saints can be an ointment and healing balm.

How can we be an example and offer good counsel to the world struggling under this trouble?

Are there types of interactions we should avoid? How does Isa 52:7 fit into this lesson?

342:1

The troubles of this "Day of Jehovah" will give opportunity for preaching the good tidings.

What are some practical ways we can bind up the wounds, and apply the oil & wine of comfort and cheer?

342:2

Our sympathy, like that of our heavenly Father, must be largely in harmony with the groaning creation...

We are to see that we are not in the way of Jehovah's chariot, but to "stand still and see the salvation of God."

What does this mean for us personally as this time of trouble continues to ramp up?

In retrospect: Any reflections or take aways from this consideration of "The Day of Jehovah"?

STUDY 16 - CONCLUDING THOUGHTS - Our Duty Toward the Truth – Its Cost, Its Value, Its Profit.

343:1

This paragraph lists what seven things that we've learned from the preceding chapters of this volume?

343:2

God's great plan is one that has required ages.

How have these ages been utilized and what has been and will be accomplished during these ages?

344:1

All the families of the earth will be blessed with a most favorable opportunity.

Who are the key players and what are their roles that make this possible?

What will be the environment of the most favorable opportunity?

345:1

A trial can in no case proceed until the judge is on the bench and the court is in session at the appointed time.

What time frame is this referring to?
